Conversion as Intimacy with God

*Breast of the Lord,
Kingdom of God:
Who rests against it,
A theologian shall be.
(Evagrius of Pontus – 4th century)*

I. Conversion as intimacy with God – John's Gospel

II. The Uniqueness of John's gospel

- a. John's gospel as a mystical gospel
- b. Jesus as always divine in John's Gospel

III. The central metaphor:

“Listening to the Heartbeat of God” – John 13, 23

a. Situating the metaphor in John’s gospel

- In Jesus’ farewell discourse
- In John’s gospel as a whole
  - Images of ideal discipleship in John’s gospel
    - ✚ Mary of Magdala – “The lover of the Song of Songs seeking her beloved/soulmate
    - ✚ The beloved disciple – the one who leans on Christ’s breast, hears his heartbeat, and looks out at the world from there
      - ❖ This trumps everything else in terms of discipleship, including power and office

IV. Fleshing out the metaphor: How do we listen for Christ's heartbeat?

- By listening to Jesus call our name
  - The overall hermeneutic of the 4th gospel: “What are you looking for?”
  - The abstract answer: “The way, the truth, the light, the life, the water of life, rebirth”
  - The existential answer: Jesus’ answer to Mary of Magdala at the end of John’s original gospel: To hear our name pronounced in loved
  - Robert Michel on what this means
  - Henri Nouwen - Living as “God’s Beloved”

V. How do we live this out?

- 1) By letting Jesus show us where God lives - John 1
  - And then by showing Jesus where we live – John 11
- 2) By not blocking access to God – “Cleansing of temple” – John 2
- 3) By being “born again, from above” – John 3
- 4) By accepting the judgment of light, truth, and Spirit – John 3
- 5) By trusting in the “bread of life” - John 6
  - i. By being nourished daily by the Eucharist
  - ii. By accepting “the sarx”

V. How do we live this out?

- 6) By not “stoning others with the Commandments”
– John 8
- 7) By living in honesty – “refusing to lie” – John 9
- 8) By letting the resurrected Jesus descend into our communal and private hells – John 20.
